

Visting Wright's Home and Studio

 Frank Lloyd Wright Trust
CHICAGO

I am going to visit
Frank Lloyd Wright's
Home and Studio.
It is a museum.

It is where the architect
Frank Lloyd Wright lived.

I will know I am there
when I see the wall made of bricks and shingles.

My teacher will let someone know that we are here.

When it is my turn, I will begin my tour at the front door.

There will be someone to tell me more information about each room.

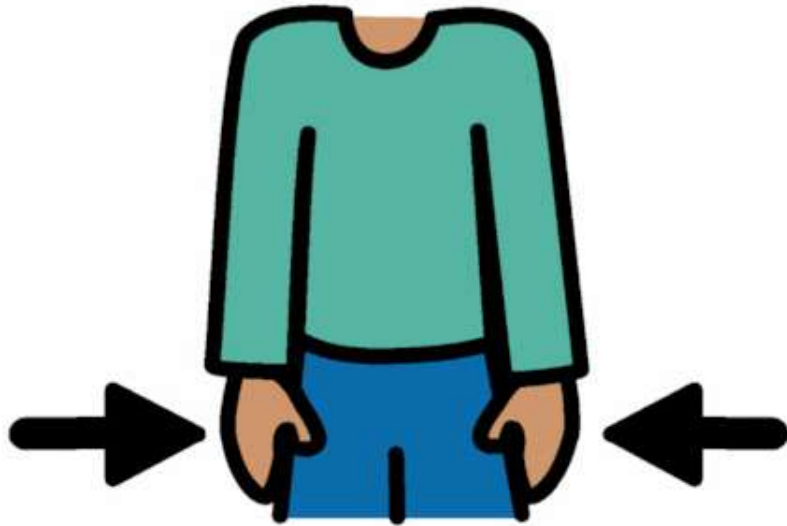

If I need help, I will ask someone who is wearing a lanyard with a red nametag.

They can answer my questions and help me if I need something during my tour.

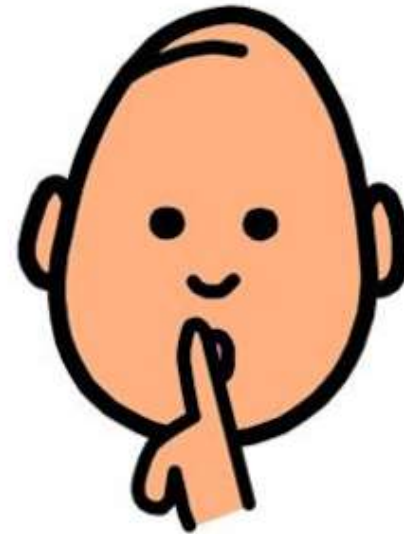

I will remember that this house is a museum and I will not touch or lean on anything inside.

I keep my hands to myself

I will use a quiet voice when I am inside the museum.

If I need to use the bathroom, I will visit the bathroom by the museum shop.

After my tour, my teacher might ask me to wait outside.

Finally, I will leave Wright's Home and Studio and go back to school.
